STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Article 33 of the Constitution provides that Parliament may by law determine to what extent any of the rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution shall, in their application to the members of the Armed Forces or the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order, be restricted or abrogated so as to ensure the proper discharge of their duties and the maintenance of discipline among them. In the Army Act, 1950, the Air Force Act, 1950 and the Navy Act, 1957, provision has been made by virtue of the said article 33 for the restriction or abrogation of the rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution in their application to the members of the Armed Forces. No such provision has so far been made by Parliament by law in regard to the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order. It is felt that in order to ensure the proper discharge of their duties and the maintenance of discipline among them, the members of the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order should not, without the express sanction of the Central Government, form any trade union, labour union or any political association or communicate with the press or publish or cause to be published anything except where such communication or publication is in the bona fide discharge of their duties or is of a purely literary, artistic or scientific character. It is also felt that no member of a police force should participate in, or address any meeting or take part in any demonstration organised by any body of persons for any political purposes. This Bill is intended to achieve the aforesaid objects.

NEW DELHI;

The 2nd November, 1966.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 5 of the Bill empowers the Central Government to add to the Schedule any other enactment relating to a force charged with the maintenance of public order or omit any enactment from the Schedule. It is not possible to visualise at this stage what other enactments relating to forces charged with the maintenance of public order may have to be included in the Schedule particularly as it may be found necessary in future to have further such enactments. Having regard to this circumstance the powers delegated are of a normal character.

Clause 6 of the Bill authorises the Central Government to make rules for carrying out the purposes of the Act. The matters in respect of which rules may be made are matters relating to procedure or detail. Moreover, the rules will be subject to scrutiny of Parliament. Thus the delegation of this legislative power is of a normal character.
